CITY GUIDE MAP

Art & Architecture

Attracting artists, designers, and visionaries is part of the City of Palm Desert's history. As a natural progression, the City became the first in Riverside County to create a public art program in 1986. Over the years, its collection has grown in size and diversity of style and subject matter. Because Palm Desert is a community enjoyed and appreciated out of doors, it is fitting that much of the art collection can also be enjoyed in the warm sunshine and fresh air.

In the early 1960s, architects and developers were also attracted to the desert. They saw the unique desert conditions as a new challenge in home and commercial building design. The results of which are some of the most cherished and sought after structures in southern California.

This map indicates the locations of the City of Palm Desert's art collection including the works along El Paseo, which are part of a changing exhibit. The map also directs you to many significant and historical structures still in use today. Homes are privately owned, but the architecture can be appreciated from the street.

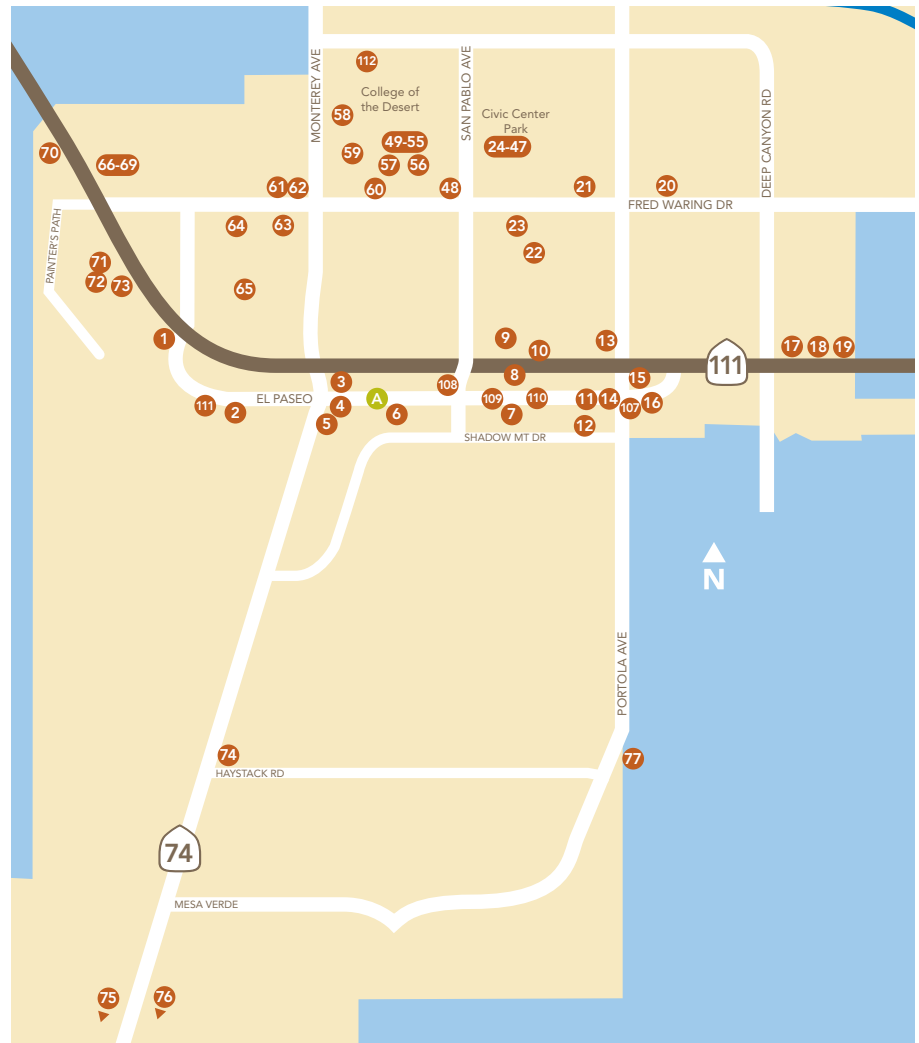

We invite you to learn more about Palm Desert's art and architecture on line at www.palmdesertart.org or by purchasing the accompanying Palm Desert Art & Architecture book.
